Citizens Speak Out at Second Hearing on the City Budget

by Thomas X. White

Just prior to its regular meeting on May 24, the Greenbelt City Council conducted its second public hearing on the proposed Fiscal Year 2005 city budget. The hearing was the first opportunity for public reaction to changes that had been informally accepted by a majority of council at its May 17 final budget worksession. Two citizens used this opportunity to voice strong objections to the proposed budget that now would require a two-cent increase in the city real property tax rate from 69.6 cents to 71.6 cents and a similar increase in the business personal property tax rate from $1.61 to $1.63.

A memo to council from City Manager Michael McLaughlin and Treasurer Jeff Williams outlining all the suggested changes to the proposed budget informally agreed upon at the May 17 final budget work session was made available to those attending the council meeting. Based on the suggestions made at that worksession, a total of $337,400 in additional revenues will be figured in the budget.

Citizen Comments

Suzanne Krofchik, the first citizen to comment, noted that although she appreciated all the time and effort that council puts into the budget review, she is not happy with the proposed increase in city taxes. She compared the city approach with how people have to run a household. "[For a household] there is only a certain amount of income. If expenses are greater, [you need to] reduce somewhere. The city does the reverse by just raising taxes. You need to start looking for cuts [because] the citizens end up paying more." Krofchik suggested cutting the money council added to retain a red light camera that staff recommended turning off, considering increased user fees, reducing some recreation programs and making them more self-supporting and charging more affluent seniors more for existing discounted programs. Krofchik told council that her friends and neighbors generally agreed with her position.

Charles Hagelgans also registered opposition to the proposed increase in the tax rate. He noted that his house was recently reappraised approximately 50 percent higher by state assessors and that he expects annual 10 percent increases in his property assessment for the foreseeable future. In his view the city's proposed budget is "not quite balanced with my interest." Noting the extra taxes that Greenbelt homeowners pay over county taxes, he asked, "Is it worth $1,200 to remain in Greenbelt?"

Council members responded to citizen concerns with courtesy and understanding but offered no remedies. Mayor Judith Davis agreed with the need to look for ways to trim but noted it was extremely difficult to balance competing interests. She also said most recreation programs are self-supporting.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts defended his position on the red light camera, expressing concern that "turning off the camera would lend ammunition to people who want to get rid of the program."

Councilmember Edward Putens noted, "We do the best we can. Maybe we have to tell people to lower expectations."

Councilmember Leta Mach echoed the mayor's comments, expressed appreciation for the thoughtful comments and noted the difficulty in balancing all the different needs.

Councilmember Konrad Herling also thanked the citizens for their time and effort, while noting the traditional higher level of expectations in Greenbelt, a greater confidence in the city government, how the city is known to respond to needs and the expected maintenance of the quality of life in Greenbelt.

Changes

The city council's preliminary one-cent increase over the manager's original proposal of an additional one-cent in both the real and personal property rates results in a $135,400 increase. An increase of $20 in inspection fees for rental apartments (from $50 to $70) and a $35 increase for single family home rentals (from $100 to $135) will yield an

Tom Renahan to Discuss His Six Months in Iraq

The Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club is sponsoring a special evening forum, "Developing Democratic Institutions and Processes in Iraq – A Special Report from an American Expert Working in Iraq." All interested citizens are invited to attend the forum, which will be held on Thursday evening, June 10 beginning at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held at the Terrace Room in the Greenbriar Community Center, 7600 Hanover Parkway (at the intersection of Greenbelt Road and Hanover Parkway).

Tom Renahan, a resident of Greenbelt, has been working in Iraq since December 2003, as part of a team of American and European experts assembled by the International City Management Association (ICMA). The team is primarily focused on working with local officials to help establish democratically-based councils and institutions. Renahan is working under a one-year contract through an ICMA subcontractor and is on a two-week home visit. He will be returning to Iraq in mid-June. Renahan will provide a direct, hands-on report on progress and obstacles in establishing democratic values and institutions in Iraq.

Renahan is a political scientist and has taught at Western Illinois University. He is an expert in local government politics and has significant local professional credentials, previously serving as city manager in Seat Pleasant and as a consultant to the towns of Berwyn Heights and Fairmont Heights, as well as the City of Mount Rainier.

Before leaving for his assignment in Iraq last December, in an exclusive interview with Sandra Lange of the Greenbelt News Review, Renahan expressed cautious optimism about his mission. "There are a lot of very smart people in Iraq, but it remains to

by Marat Moore

More than 200 Greenbelt-area veterans and residents gathered at American Legion Post 136 Monday morning to honor veterans who sacrificed their lives in military service. The event, originally planned as an outdoor ceremony at Roosevelt Center, moved inside the Legion hall after the low blanket of clouds dripped a steady rain. The solemn note was appropriate, noted Mayor Judith Davis in her remarks to the group, in contrast to Saturday's glorious weather which welcomed hundreds of thousands of World War II veterans – most of whom are now in their 80s – to the National Mall in Washington, D.C., to greet each other and mark their accomplishments of "the greatest generation." Davis read a proclamation honoring veterans who lost their lives in the armed services. She attended the weekend opening of the memorial on behalf of her father, who like many World War II veterans, was physically unable to attend.

For the active veterans of Post 136 and Unit 136 Auxiliary, the somber ceremony on Monday morning was an apt conclusion to an unforgettable weekend. On Saturday, 20 World War II veterans from the post were ferried to the mass celebration, where they toured reunion tents, shared stories and basked in the sun. On Sunday Post 136 held a special dinner for about 30 World War II veterans and their families, and prepared American Legion certificates of appreciation with an image of the new national memorial to all 682 p World War II veterans on the post roster for their "Service to America." The Washington Post was on hand to take a photograph which was due to appear in the Prince George's County section of Thursday's edition.

Barbara Luther and her sister, Nancy, brought their father, Max Dach, to the Mall on Saturday to be part of the historic event. "It was a magnificent tribute to this generation, with the reunion tents and the Navajo code-talkers and jitterbug lessons. It felt like a small town – like Greenbelt – with a feeling of unity and collaboration," said Luther, whose father also attended Greenbelt's Memorial Day ceremony.

Doug Peters, Prince George's County Councilmember and a Desert Storm veteran, noted

Marjorie Gallun, who served in the Marines during World War II in supply and payroll and now lives in Lanham, salutes as the American Legion Post 136 wreath was presented at the Memorial Service, joining a solemn row of wreaths. A member of the Post, Gallun was escorted by a Prince George's County deputy sheriff in a cruiser, with lights flashing, with her son and daughter to the memorial opening on the Mall on Saturday.

Concentrate On Eyesores!

For years Greenbelt Homes has had an annual yard inspection program in place and for years I received notice that my yard looked good and to “Keep up the good work.” Last year, for the first time, I was told that I had to remove the mold from the outside of my unit, which I of course did. I understand that this year an outside company is conducting the inspections. I don’t know what type of training or guidelines the inspector has been given, but the concept of being reasonable and using discretion does not seem to have been conveyed. I understand the need to paint fences, wash mold from the sides of homes, cut grass and trim hedges to maintain an acceptable neighborhood appearance.

I don’t understand that this inspector is now making gardening decisions such as cut seedling trees from hedge or weed your flowerbeds. We must be gearing up for a Southern Living garden tour. If a yard looks generally in good shape, which mine does, then why is it necessary to nit pick the little things. This smacks of a company going beyond what is necessary so that it can justify its contract. Or perhaps this is being done to generate more fee-for-service dollars for GHI.

If you were to review the inspections of my yard from previous years, you would find that I take care of my yard. What has changed from then to now is not my level of yard care but the fact that inspection standards have been tightened to ridiculous, seemingly arbitrary levels.

I would like GHI to concentrate on the true eyesores and let those who obviously care about their yards have a stray weed here and there or a few leaves in their yards.

“Creative Process”
Exhibition Opens

A new exhibition celebrating the creative process will open at the Community Center’s Art Gallery on June 5. “Creative Process: New Works by Greenbelt Artists,” includes work in a variety of media by 11 artists living and/or working in Greenbelt. All work in the exhibition was created in 2004.

Greenbelt artist and educator Tom Baker developed and curated this exhibition as an outreach project in conjunction with his participation in the artist-in-residence program. The goals of the project are to: display an eclectic, mature, strong and creative body of work by Greenbelt artists; to learn how each artist approaches the creative process; and to encourage continued awareness, discussion and exploration of the process of creativity in the community.

Artists participating in the show were selected by juror Eileen Cave, president of the Hyattsville Community Artists Alliance. Featured artists in addition to Baker include Barbara Bjanas, Dick Brown, Barbara McGee, Pauline Grant, Shin Yeon Jeon, Ted Kliman, Jean Newcomb, Shayna Skolnik, Barbara Stevens and Linda Uphoff. In addition to their artwork, artists are contributing written reflections to the exhibition offering insight into their working processes.

The public is invited to meet the artists at a reception on Sunday, June 6, from 3 to 5 p.m. “Creative Process” will remain on display through July 10. The Art Gallery is open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily whenever the room is not reserved for special use. The Greenbelt Community Center is located at 15 Crescent Road. For more information call 301-397-2208.

New Traffic Light
For Lakecrest Dr.

by James Giese

City Manager Michael McLaughlin has announced the welcome news that a traffic signal will be installed at the intersection of Greenbelt Road and Lakecrest Drive opposite the entrance to Holy Cross Lutheran Church. The city council has been asking the Maryland State Highway Administration (SHA) for a signal for that intersection for more than two decades.

McLaughlin gave significant credit for this accomplishment to County Councilmember Douglas Peters, who initially contacted the SHA nearly a year ago and pressed the issue several times.

Peters wrote in response to SHA that avoiding this dangerous intersection by “funneling vehicular traffic from the subdivisions and businesses located on or adjacent to Lakecrest Drive through heavily congested, residential neighborhoods and narrow roadways, in front of a community center, playground and place of worship and on an already overloaded and heavily traveled Southway” created other dangerous conditions for Greenbelt residents. Peters also noted that the “historical record of accidents” was another strong indicator of the need for a signal.

On May 6, SHA District Engineer Charlie Watkins sent letters to both Peters and Mayor Judith Davis relaying the good news. Watkins told Peters and Davis that “once a schedule for the installation of the signal has been determined, we will advise you further.”

In announcing this decision at a worksession May 12 and later at a May 21 meeting of the Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club, Davis noted that it could be some time before the signal becomes a reality because it needs to be scheduled along with other SHA work and funded.

Correction

In the May 27 story on city contributions to volunteer groups, it was reported the money requested by the Golden Age Club was to be used for travel to “distant” destinations and not for day trips. The opposite is true. The “distant” trips are self-supporting and day trips are sometimes subsidized.

VETERANS

that more than 16 million Americans served the United States during World War II, with an average tour of duty of 33 months. More than 400,000 Americans died in that war, and the generation is now dwindling by a rate of more than 1,100 people a day.

The names of Greenbelt veterans who died in service were read by Emory Harman, as a bell was intoned with each name. Calvin Street, a Pearl Harbor survivor who represented the Disabled American Veterans Chapter 23, spoke about his nephew, a Gulf War veteran now 31 and battling cancer. His nephew asked him to tell people to “come walk with us through these military hospitals” and see how many injured young people fill the beds.

George Ellers, who served as a communications officer in the Army Air Corps in the Pacific and now lives on Hillside Road, said, “Pilots in our unit came back from Japan with the first photographs of the atomic bomb.” He smiled as young Katie Dillon, a junior Unit member, presented him with a red poppy.

It was a weekend to remember, a time of memories dusted off and held up to the light. And not just for World War II veterans – as every Memorial Day, the Vietnam veterans of “Rolling Thunder,” a motorcycle group, arrived at the nation’s capital and 300 of them staged their entrance at Post 136 in Greenbelt.

Women’s Softball Competes Again

by Catherine Zaranis

It’s softball season again. The first pitch in the Greenbelt Recreation Women’s Softball League is soon approaching. Come watch a favorite team compete. The Tornadoes, Bugettes, Outlaws and Stealers will be there. The league is currently one team short because the Marylanders have dropped out; however, a fifth team is expected to join. Fortunately, people can still watch the Marylanders players as the existing teams have absorbed them. These changes will certainly contribute to more intensity and competition among the teams.

People who would like to have fun and enjoy quality women’s softball come to the season opener on June 7. Games will be played on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday at 7 p.m. at Braden Field. For a sneak peek, catch the pre-season exhibition game on June 5 (Greenbelt Day) at 2 p.m. Don’t forget sunscreen!

On May 26 the Chinese Auction was lots of fun and a good fund raiser for the club. We may have another one later in the year.

The club welcomed two new members, Joanne Gasch and Elaine Pearson.

There are openings on the trip to Hanover, Pa. on July 8 and Atlantic City on August 5.

Astronomy Club Views Planets

If the weather cooperates, the Greenbelt Astronomy Club will have two observing sessions in the next several days at the Wolfe Fields on Northway, extended. The first session will begin at sunrise on Tuesday, June 8, and the second will begin at sunset on Saturday, June 12. Club members will attend both events with aids for observing.

The observing session on June 8 is to observe a very special and rare event. The planet Venus will transit (pass in front of, as seen from Earth) the sun, an event which has not occurred since 1882. The next transit will occur in 2012 and after that another will not happen until 2117, so do not miss this rare opportunity. The transit will already be in progress when the sun rises and is predicted to end at 7:06 a.m. Sunrise will occur at 5:41 a.m. that day. Unlike most of the club’s observing sessions, club members will be near the west edge of the fields in order to gain better visibility of the rising sun and Venus.

On Saturday, June 12 the club will have one of its evening star parties. The planets Jupiter and Saturn will be visible, along with an assortment of stars, star clusters and nebulae. Sunset will be at 8:34 p.m. that evening.

Events will be cancelled without further notice in case of rain or hopeless cloudiness at shwo time.

Underwater Photos At New Deal Café

Underwater photographs taken by Karan Temple True will be on view at the New Deal Café in Roosevelt Center through June. On Sunday, June 13 from 7 to 9 p.m. there will be a reception for True to which the public is invited.

True’s photographs were taken in Bonaire, Netherlands Antilles. In 1994 she began snorkeling and then SCUBA diving. In 1996 True began taking photographs underwater. According to True: “I have had some great dives, doing about two each year since then and taking pictures most of the time. Coral is probably the most compliant of undersea life to take pictures of, since it does not move. Sea fans are a bit more difficult as they sway in the current.

“Fish do not pose for photographers, except in very rare instances – sand divers and flounder lay on the bottom and frogfish look like the coral they are living on. Eels hide in crevices and are rarely seen swimming about.

“There are also the ocean currents to consider when trying to take a picture as not only do the fish not stay still for you, you can’t always stay still either. And we thought taking a picture of small children and pets was difficult!”

True thanks her friend, Michael Smallwood, “who through his artistic and photographic expertise enhanced and printed the enlargements of these photographs and made this show possible.”

Greenbelters are glad to hear that News Review staffer Laura Beckert is recovering from a leg injury she received in an automobile accident. Because she must stay off her feet for most of the summer, the family has had much support from friends and neighbors. Many have brought meals, cleaned the house and helped with the children. It has been a true Greenbelt experience. The family wants to thank all, especially the Greenbelt Fire Department and Rescue Squad who were so caring when they took her to the hospital and saw that she got good care.

Congratulations to Kevin Michael Skolnik who has been named to the dean's list for the spring semester at the University of North Carolina at Asheville. He is the son of Steve and Lola Skolnik of Ridge Rd.

Congratulations also to Andrea Anita Ebanks of Edmondston Road and Korto Aramintha Dunbar of Breezewood Terrace. Both students recently received their B.S. in Health Care Management from Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, IL.

Congratulations to James E. MacIvively of Greenbelt who has been promoted to the position of regional sales director with AmeriPlan Corp., a provider of discounted health benefits.

Lead Report Issued For Local Schools

Prince George's County Public Schools have released information on the water lead levels in most Greenbelt area schools. No lead was found during testing at Greenbelt Elementary School. Lead was found in kitchen faucets at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, in a water fountain at Springhill Lake Elementary School and in a kitchen faucet at Magnolia Elementary School. Test results have not been released for Greenbelt Middle School.

The school system reported that all fixtures with elevated lead were taken out of use immediately. The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission will retest the fixtures and corrective measures will be implemented after the final assessment is complete.

Smoke Detector Reminder

The Greenbelt Public Safety Advisory Committee reminds everyone that smoke detectors are an essential part of every household – and they are required by law. One should be on each floor, as well as outside of each sleeping area. They need to be tested regularly and batteries must be changed at least once a year.

What is Islam?

Muslims believe in the message of all Prophets beginning with Adam and ending with Muhammad, 1400 years ago.

"Say ye, 'We believe in God and the revelation given to us, and to Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob and the Tribes, and that given to Moses and Jesus, and that given to (all) prophets from their Lord. We make no difference between one and another of them and we bow to God (in submission)'."

Senior Picnic Held In Schrom Hills Park

Greenbelt seniors enjoyed their annual Recreation Department-sponsored picnic outing at Schrom Hills Park on May 27. While previous outings have been outside the city at various locations, the seniors agreed that the Schrom Hills facility was more convenient and well suited to their needs. Therapeutic Recreation Coordinator Karen Haseley prepared the picnic lunch with the aid of her two new summer interns, Anne Stanton and Tera Westbrook.

While waiting for the hamburgers and hot dogs to cook, the seniors did a picture puzzle quiz and had a scavenger hunt with clues related to the history of the park.

Karen Haseley prepared hamburgers and hot dogs for the seniors.

Once the food was ready, the seniors quickly loaded up their plates.

Anne Stanton (l.) From Clemson University and Tera Westbrook from Old Dominion University are summer therapeutic recreation interns for Greenbelt's Therapeutic Recreation Coordinator Karen Haseley (r.).

additional $100,000 in revenue. An adjustment in the estimated Highway User Fee receipts from the state (from higher automobile licensing and registration fees) will add $62,000 and the expectation of a contribution from AIMCO, the owner of Springhill Lake apartments, to share in funding an additional police officer for that neighborhood will add $40,000. When these additional revenues are included, the adjusted revenue total for FY05 now amounts to $19,067,200.

Increased Costs

The May 21 memo also listed proposed adjustments to the expenditure side of the proposed budget, which were included in the agreements made by a majority of council on May 17. Funds added to the expenditure side were for additional staff requested by city department heads (and not funded in the city manager's proposed budget), as well as increases for contribution groups, individual council requests and other items identified during budget worksessions. These expenditure additions totaled $341,000. With these proposed additions, total expenditures in the adjusted budget would be balanced with adjusted revenues at $19,067,200.

By the end of the brief public hearing there appeared to be no movement from council on the items discussed and informally accepted at the final budget worksession. Citizens will have another opportunity to provide input to council at the regular meeting on June 7 when the budget for FY05 is scheduled for adoption.

Concealed Weapon

Market Lane and Springhill Court, May 25, 4:04 p.m., a resident youth was arrested for concealed deadly weapon and disorderly conduct when police responded to a report of a pending fight between several people. Upon arriving on the scene, police observed the youth shouting at three other people. The youth refused to cease his shouting and then pulled a knife from his pocket and threw it to the ground. He was transported to Juvenile Services in Cheltenham pending action by the Juvenile Justice System.

Robbery

9000 block Breezewood Terrace, May 22, 12:07 a.m., a man reported that he had just parked his vehicle when he was approached by another man, who pointed a handgun at him and demanded money. Blood Drive Monday

Doctors Community Hospital and the Greenbelt Lions Club in partnership with American Red Cross will hold a blood drive on Monday, June 7 on the hospital's Lanham campus from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. National blood inventories have dropped by more than 50 percent and are currently at less than a two-day supply. Call 301-552-8060 to make an appointment.

Pedestrian Safety Month in the City

June has been designated as "Pedestrian Safety Month" in Greenbelt as the police department seeks to reduce pedestrian accidents and prevent fatalities.

Police will pose as pedestrians in crosswalks to ensure that motorists stop properly. They will issue citations to motorists who do not stop for pedestrians and warning cards to pedestrians who illegally cross a roadway. Safety classes will be given for children at schools, day care centers and summer camps.

So far this year five pedestrians have been struck in the city. In 2003, 16 pedestrians were hit, two of them fatally. In most of these crashes the pedestrian was at fault, so more awareness is vital.

The city's Public Works Department is erecting pedestrian safety signs in crosswalks and restriping crosswalks that need it.

For more information contact MPO Scott Kaiser, police traffic safety officer at 240-542-2114 or Skaiser@ci.greenbelt.md.us.

Bus Driver Deals with Emergency Here

On May 20 riders on a Metrobus traveling through Greenbelt on Crescent Road were surprised when the bus came to an unscheduled halt in front of the firehouse and even more surprised when the driver, John Hutchins, apologizing, remarked, "I have to take care of this." Without more ado, Hutchins escorted an elderly passenger into the firehouse, entrusting him to the rescue squad team. Apparently the passenger had suffered a stroke.

No one on the bus complained. On the contrary, passengers assured Hutchins he had done the right thing and one anonymous passenger wrote to commend him "for his impeccable judgment and for his dedication to service."

The Department is offering a reward of up to $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in any of the unsolved crimes reported in the blotter. Citizens may anonymously report suspected drug activity by calling the Drug Tip Line at 301-507-6522.

Exchange Service Co-op Schedules Annual Meeting

by Virginia Beauchamp

Shortly after Greenbelt began, its newly acquainted citizens founded cooperative associations to meet their current needs and solve pressing problems. First among them, the Greenbelt Federal Credit Union provided banking services to what was then a village remote from other municipalities. Second was the Greenbelt Cooperative Publishing Association, publisher of the weekly newspaper you now are reading – first called the Cooperator, later renamed the Greenbelt News Review.

In those earliest days Greenbelt’s population exploded with babies and children, and cooperatives grew to meet the needs of these young families – a food co-op, of course, and pharmacy but also a babysitting pool and the Greenbelt Cooperative Nursery School.

Now the city’s demographics are different. The children have grown up and moved away, though some are coming back with their own children. Still many of their parents have aged in place, in a town they love and where they want to stay. With their different needs and their frailer selves, it seemed second nature to found another cooperative.

GIVESHistory

This is the history of GIVES, the Greenbelt Intergenerational Volunteer Exchange Service, which began in 1993. GIVES was formed primarily as a means for senior citizens to help each other, though, as the name implies, members of any age are welcome to become members. Accounted for on an hourly basis, participants offer services – perhaps driving someone to an appointment or shopping for another member’s groceries, performing yard work or telephoning. Each participant is then reimbursed with other needed services from other members. In other words, credits are transferred from one account to another. In some cases time-served hours are donated to those in need.

A volunteer in the central assignment center, in office space located in a corner of the Community Center’s Senior Lounge, arranges assignments and records what services were provided to which member and by whom. Serving as general office manager is Jean Lombardo, who oversees staffing of the office and the keeping of all records.

Among other services offered are tutoring, sewing and mending, meal delivery, letter writing, laundry, light housekeeping, minor home repairs, visiting, pet sitting and telephone reassurance. Donations, in-kind services, grant money and fund-raising activities help to support the group financially.

Annual Meeting

Once a year members gather for an annual meeting to elect officers and perhaps effect changes in policies and procedures. The meeting this year will take place at 10 a.m. on Saturday, June 19 in the Theater Rehearsal Room (Room 202) in the Community Center. All members and interested citizens are urged to attend. Refreshments will be served.

On this year’s agenda, besides the election of officers and committee reports, will be discussion and adoption of a policy defining time and weight limits on

American Red Cross Needs Volunteers

The American Red Cross of the National Capital Area is recruiting new volunteers to prevent, prepare for and respond to disasters and emergencies in the community. For more information or to register for an orientation call the Prince George’s County Office, 6206 Belcrest Road in Hyattsville, Tuesday, June 15 from 10 to 11 a.m. at 301-559-8500 or log on to www.redcrossnca.org and click on “How to Volunteer.”

The Red Cross seeks people of all ages and interests. They can respond to fires, present information on disaster preparedness, provide CPR and first aid classes, help with administrative tasks and create graphics projects and web designs.

requests for shopping.

Through the years GIVES has maintained relationships with other organizations and service providers in the area: the Greenbelt City Council, the Greenbelt Adult Care Center, the Greenbelt Democratic Club, Green Ridge House, Greenbelt Homes, Inc., the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee, churches and religious fellowships and several businesses. Besides the board of directors, GIVES has an at-large board including members of some of these organizations.

Since the formation of FORA (Friends of the Resource Advocate) and the hiring of Christal Parker Batey as Resource Advocate for the city’s Assistance in Living Program, GIVES has developed close associations with Batey and her support group as well.

For general information about GIVES or to request specific assistance call 301-507-6580.

be seen how much the democratic system will work,” he observed. “While many [Iraqi] people are anti-Saddam, they are not necessarily pro-American . . . people would rather have bad government than a foreign government,” he concluded.

Roosevelt Democratic Club President Bill Hunt said, “I am looking forward to Tom Renahan’s report and his impressions of what he has found in his first six months in Iraq. I also am grateful that he is willing to spend part of his home leave with us. Having a professional with firsthand knowledge and on-the-ground experience working with Iraqi citizens and local leaders will provide invaluable insights and will be of great interest to all citizens of Prince George’s County.”

Greenbelt Day Weekend is the perfect time to experience some of the reasons that perpetuate the “Greenbelt Is Great” attitude. Stroll through our walkways on a tour of Greenbelt homes and gardens, take in a ball game, listen to live music, join in hands-on arts activities, take a dip in the pool...there truly is something for everyone. Enjoy! All activities are FREE and open to ALL AGES unless otherwise noted.

The Mayor and City Council cordially invite all of you to come and enjoy your community.
